

Help students tackle a First Day and fall semester like no other.

Picture your first day at Washington University. You probably see smiling faces, group hugs, and classrooms full of nervous strangers. Maybe you remember walking through the underpass from the South 40, seeing Brookings tower over the Quad, meeting friends at Olin Library, or wondering what “the bunny” is pondering near Graham Chapel. These iconic landmarks remain, but First Day will look and feel very different this year.

Faculty and staff have been working tirelessly to welcome students back to campus safely and prepare for a meaningful—if atypical—WashU experience this fall. But students are going to need support from our entire WashU community on First Day and beyond. As an alum who has walked in their shoes and benefited from a WashU education, you have a unique opportunity to offer encouragement, share why you love the university, and voice support for your future fellow alumni. Please join us on Monday, September 14, to welcome students back and help them have a great First Day!
